Easel and tackboard blend into executive conference room

A Marsh Basket Easel was customized to reflect the new décor of an executive conference room that had been remodeled by Seaman Corporation. The easel's frame and basket, used to store presentation accessories, were fabricated with steel using a Black Tuxedo powder coating finish. The 33 by 48-inch board features a porcelain on steel magnetic writing surface on both sides. The board is framed with solid maple hardwood, with a stain and varnish to match the room's décor. Magnetic hook accessories provide for the use of flip charts. The stand-alone unit is equipped with high quality castors to allow easy movement around the room. Two of the castors lock to keep the unit in place.

The Tackboard, created for the same room, has a vinyl-covered surface designed to make it easy to use push pins for presentations. The 15-ounce Class A Type II vinyl covering is from Koroseal's Corkstone pattern series. The board was framed with solid maple hardwood, also stained and varnished to match the easel and room décor.
